DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. §103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 17 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. §103(a) as being unpatentable over Zook (US 1624458) in view of Kise (US 4290215) and Mohun (US 1728433).

Zook (figures 1-9) teaches a rotating pin clasp comprising: a base member 4 including sides 5, 6, top 7 and lip extending outwardly parallel to the top that form a cavity on the surface defined by the outwardly facing edges of the sides 5, 6, top 7 and facing lip whereby the pin can be rotated so as to be hidden from view (page 1, lines 82-87). There is a rod 8 fixed in the cavity and carries sleeves 14, 15 acting as collars that respectively carry the pin-retaining member 19 and the hinge 17 of the pin 18. The difference is that the base member is reversed with a collar secured thereto and the rod rotatable in the collar and the rod having a recess to receive the collar wherein the recess has a diameter less than the diameter of a section of the rod adjacent the first recess. However, Kise (figure 1) teaches that it is desirable to secure a collar 7 to the base member 1 so as to receive a rod 5 of the pin rotatably and Mohun (figures 1, 4) teaches hinge structure with the rod 20 having two recesses 40 defining a rod diameter less than the diameter of the rod adjacent the recesses wherein two collars 33 are received in the recesses and performs the function of keeping the rod 20 in place as indicated on page 3, lines 7-23. It would have been obvious to modify the fastener of Zook so that there is a collar on the base member to rotatably receive the rod of the pin in view of Kise teaching that it is desirable to provide such structure as a simpler connection as a matter of a reversal of parts and as to the collar being received in a recess in the rod, Mohun teaches that it is desirable to have the collar received in a recess of the rod so as to more readily maintain the position of the rod against axial movement, a beneficial result.

Claim 18 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. §103(a) as being unpatentable over Zook (US 1624458) in view of Kise (US 4290215) and Mohun (US 1728433) as applied to claim 17 above, and further in view of Panzer (US 5245844).

Further modification of the fastener of Zook so that there would be two collars secured to the base member would have been obvious in view of Panzer (figure 1) teaching the use of spaced collars 26, 24 attached to the base 22 for receiving pin structure 34'. To further have the collars received within recesses wherein the recesses create a narrowing of the rod would have been obvious in view of Mohun explicitly showing such structure to be conventional since it helps to retain the rod from moving axially as indicated above.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 1-5 and 7-16 are allowed.

Response to Arguments

Applicant has provided new claim 17 based on claim 1 that further narrows the meaning of the term recess and is therefore viewed as a narrowing of the previous language of claim 1 and to also seek to avoid the use of Official Notice given in the last office action. The use of hinge structure with two recesses in the rod that receive two collars is known, is old and as shown by Mohun to have been utilized for the expected property of inhibiting axial movement of the rod out of the hinge.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
